No "I" in Teamwork in a Global Economy

Success in a global economy relies as much on your efforts as on how well you and your partners can synchronize. Think sports and how great teamwork can trump one standout player. Learn how companies apply this approach in Competing in a Flat World: Building Enterprises for a Borderless World by Victor K. Fung, William K. Fung and Yoram Wind (Wharton School Publishing).

QuickStat: Globalization Prompts Cozying Up to Suppliers

Research from CAPS Research, A.T. Kearney and ISM has found the top concern of supply managers is the impact of China, India and other large, developing countries on the competitive landscape. In response to these pressures, companies will shift their business models, pursue new revenue streams, further squeeze costs, make their asset base as lean as possible and reshape their capital structures. In particular, they will develop early warning or predictive approaches to improve risk management, deepen working relationships with suppliers and multiple supply networks to meet the needs of specific markets.

SAP Pivotal to Bamboo Pipeline's Growth

Bamboo Pipeline, a wholesale distributor of landscape plants and project materials, was named to the Inc. 5000 Fastest Growing Privately Held Companies in the U.S. The company attributes this explosive growth to SAP, whose enterprise technology allowed it to build a virtual green industry trading floor that it uses to buy and sell trees and plants. Bamboo Pipeline was also cited as being the #1 fastest-growing green goods company in the U.S.
